Stony Point, New York Three Generations of Rose Lighthouse Keepers

Alexander Rose succeeded his wife's uncle Robert Parkinson who died in 1853 as lighthouse keeper in Stony Point. Four years later, when Alexander collapsed and died, his wife Nancy assumed her husband's duties. She raised her children and served as keeper until shortly before her death in 1904. Her daughter Melinda took over the light keeper's duties for a year thereafter. [Summarized from the museum plaque.]

Editors made an interesting trip to Stony Point about five years ago to visit at the lighthouse and the adjoining museum. Below: In this c1890 photograph, Nancy Rose (center) is shown in front of the second keeper's house with her daughter Melinda (left) and an unidentified woman. Upon Nancy's death, Melinda applied to the Light House Board to succeed her mother and was granted the permission. She served one year before retiring.

Nancy Rose was interviewed by the Rockland Messenger on April 4, 1879. [Photo was cropped from the plaque shown at the right.] If you do visit, be sure to include the little museum nearby.

Dear Readers,

As members know, we previously decided to transfer the Rose Family Association collection to a repository to be assured that these would be preserved for future researchers. A great deal of thought was put into this before contacting anyone. Though editor Seymour Rose is of a southern Rose family of Virginia, North Carolina, Tennessee and Alabama (before crossing the plains to California) we had to consider that out of the many early Rose families, the largest groups were in New England.

Robert Rose and his wife Margery of Wethersfield and Branford, Connecticut, who came in 1634 sailing from Ipswich, England is the largest of the U.S. Rose families. Also in New England was the Joanna Rose family of New London, Connecticut, the Thomas Rose family of Scituate, Massachusetts, the Joseph Rose family of Marshfield, Massachusetts, the Tormut Rose family of Block Island, Rhode Island and other smaller Rose groups.

We also had to consider that the repository had to be large enough to accept our huge collection, and large enough to maintain it properly. At this point many who would be interested but not able to accept the large donation had to be eliminated.

It also had to be a repository who would be able to make the collection available to researchers and who had the experience to handle large donations.

We decided to offer the collection to the New England Historic Genealogical Society in Boston. Formed in 1845, their reputation is outstanding and we had no hesitancy in considering that they would preserve the collection properly. After contacting them they enthusiastically accepted and Christine returned from the East to California last fall to work on inventoring and preparing the files. This was a major project. After three months of intense work, forty-five boxes were shipped. Over 1100 files, almost 50 manuscripts of others, and 20 books. Also a complete set of the quarterly Rose Family Bulletin, and a full set of the Association Newsletter that was published for many years. Then came an anxious three weeks waiting for their arrival in Boston (which is another story entirely, we began to think the carrier had lost it!) and finally they were there.

We don't know how long it will be before the collection is available for use by researchers but we'll keep you informed!

The fact that the large collection is now at NEHGS does not mean that Christine is unable to help researchers. Duplicates of reports and other valuable information are in our possession and those who inquire about Roses will still be helped as in the past.

Once the collection is available for perusal do make a visit to NEHGS to view the files pertinent to your group. We suspect you will be surprised!

Aaron Rose of Roseburg, Oregon

John²Rose (John¹) was born 13 April 1780, Ulster County, New York. His ancestry is unknown though he may have a relationship with the early Aldert Heymanse Roosa of Ulster County, New York. John Rose died 5 February 1840 aged 59y 9m 22d (tbs.), New Paltz, Ulster County, and is buried in the Rose Ground, Lloyd, Ulster County. He married 1st, 20 March 1800, Hannah Palmiteer who was born 15 December 1783 (calculated from age at death), Ulster County. Hannah died 28 April 1835, aged 52y 4m 13d (g.s.), buried Halstead Ground, farm of Mr. Levitt Lane. (Also buried there Damon Palmatier died 7 March 1835, age 86 yr. He is likely the John Dorman Palmateer who was a revolutionary pensioner #R7889, National Archives). John Rose married 2nd, Eliza ---. Eliza married again before 1850 to Henry Traver and is listed in the 1850 census of Ulster County, New York, town of Lloyd. Her two youngest sons are listed with them.

The original will of John Rose appears in Ulster County Courthouse Surrogate's Office in Box 34. The petition in this box shows that he left as his heirs Elisa his Widow of New Paltz; Abraham Rose of Hyde Park in Dutchess County; Robert E. Rose of town of New Paltz; William D. Rose of Branch County, Michigan; Aron [Aaron] P. Rose of Branch County, Michigan; and John E. Worden and Barbara his wife of the Town of Gerard in Branch County, Michigan; David Wise and Lucinda his wife of Town of Esopus, Ulster County; George W. Rose and John F. Rose, minors, living in New Paltz; and Sarah Catharine Rose a minor living in Town of Hyde Park, Dutchess County. This petition is dated 18 February 1840 and signed by Abr^a Rose and Robert E. Rose.

Aaron Rose was one of the first settlers of Oregon. Somehow, he was mistakenly attributed to being Jewish in the early history of that state. An article in Western States Jewish Historical Quarterly, XI No. 1 October 1978, pp. 87-89 discusses fully how Aaron Rose mistakenly "underwent a posthumous conversion to Judaism" because of misinformation. However, it reasserts what the records will show, that Aaron Rose was raised as a farmer in Ulster County, New York where he was born in 1813. Those interested in the Ulster County Rose family or in the history of Roseburg will find this article fascinating. [From a copy in the Douglas County Museum Research Library.]

Aaron P.³Rose (John², John¹) was born 29 June 1813, Ulster County, New York (Hist. Douglas Co., Ore.), and died 1 March 1899, Douglas County, Oregon. He is buried Old Mason section, Roseburg Memorial Gardens, Douglas County. He married 1st, 1838, Minerva Kelly (Hist. Douglas Co., Ore.), or Minerva Kellogg (Washtenaw Co., Mich. VR, showing marriage 9 April 1840 in York, by William Lake, J.P., Aaron Rose 26, Gerado (Girard) Branch Co., Mich. and Minerva Kellogg, 17, Pittsfield, witnessed by Leander Kellogg, Pittsfield and Luther Lake, York, marriage record sent by Sue Schultz). She died 15 September 1843 (g.s.), buried Evergreen Ceme., Girard, Branch County, Michigan. Aaron married 2nd, 13 March 1845 (Hist. Douglas Co.), Sarah Chauncey born ca 1818, New York (see 1850 census). She died 15 December 1866, Douglas County, leaving as her heirs her four brothers and the children of a deceased brother.

The obituary of Aaron Rose appeared in the Plaindealer [Roseburg, Oregon] of Thurs. 2 March 1899 and also in a second newspaper. It states that he was a native of New York, but left from Michigan to cross the plains to Oregon arriving September 23, 1851. "He was an honest, charitable and genial disposition, and his pleasant greetings will be sadly missed by old and young. He was nearly 87 years of age and leave four children to mourn his loss."

[Charter member Ellnora Rose Young of Roseburg (no relationship to Aaron Rose) was instrumental in researching and providing considerable material, as was librarian Ella Young of the Roseburg Museum.]

Aaron Rose

Judge Uriah M. Rose

LITTLE ROCK, ARKANSAS

Years ago editor Christine did considerable research with the assistance of others on the William Rose family of Fayette County, Pennsylvania. Long deceased member Lydia Scott made numerous trips into Fayette County. Editors also went into Fayette County and additionally to the Kentucky counties in which they lived. We finally established that Judge Uriah M. Rose of Little Rock, Arkansas, whose statute represents the state of Arkansas in

Judge Uriah M. Rose

Statuary Hall, Washington, D.C., was a son of Dr. Joseph Rose and his second wife Nancy Simpson, and grandson of William and Elizabeth (Alton) Rose of Fayette County, Arkansas.

One of the most perplexing stumbling rocks in examining the records were the "Addresses of U. M. Rose with a Brief Memoir by George B. Rose" (Chicago: George I. Jones, 1914). This can be viewed in its entirety at:

<https://ia600402.us.archive.org/17/items/cu31924024342465/cu31924024342465.pdf>

The problem: Judge Rose wrote: "My father was Dr. Joseph Rose, son of Charles Rose [italics added]. Joseph Rose was born near Petersburg, Virginia. While he was a child the family removed to Western Pennsylvania, where Charles Rose purchased a farm. His son, Joseph Rose, received a fairly good education in the local schools, and on his approach to manhood he was sent to Philadelphia, where he entered upon the study of medicine. Having completed his studies, he located in Pittsburgh. His father, Charles Rose, dying about that time, [italics added] left him a small estate, which led him into a disastrous enterprise that burdened his whole life..." [the account continues with his involvement in a glass company in Pittsburgh.] "My mother died at the age of 43 in September, 1848, and my father died in the following April...I was fifteen years old..."

The puzzling statement in Judge Uriah Rose's memoirs centers around his statement of the name of his grandfather as Charles Rose. The will of William Rose of Fayette County, Pennsylvania clearly names his son Joseph (and does not name a son Charles), and subsequent land records disclose the name of Joseph's wife as Flora. Ellis' History of Fayette Co., Pennsylvania, p. 660, states that Dr. Joseph Rose was a brother of Erasmus Rose, and states also that in 1811 they came to New Salem and located and practiced medicine in conjunction for several years. Since William Rose indeed had a son named Erasmus, it would seem our identification of Dr. Joseph Rose (together with a number of other clues) as the son of William Rose is correct.

How can we account for the statement made in Judge Rose's Memoirs? We should remember that Judge Rose never met his grandfather, in fact, his grandfather died about twenty seven years before his birth. And his own parents died when he was only a teenager. It would therefore not be unusual that Judge Rose was mistaken about the first name of his grandfather - even in the present day many do not know the given name of their grandfather! It is even possible that the error was a typographical error in the published Memoirs. We feel confident that Dr. Joseph Rose is indeed a son of William and Elizabeth Rose of Fayette County, Pennsylvania; i.e., the will of William Rose because of the deeds in Fayette County; name similarities; Ellis' History of Fayette Co., proximity of other family members even after moves, etc.

Aquilla Rose of North Carolina

A very interesting article "Corn Whiskey: Aquilla Rose Made Some of The Best" by-lined by John Parris tells the story of Aquilla Rose and his homestead in Eagle Creek, North Carolina. "The old log house that he grooved together with his own hands is long gone. And so is his old stillhouse, with its copper still and little corngrinder, which turned out blockade whiskey that made him the envy of many a mountain blockader." According to Mr. Parris, nobody was sure where he was born. This lengthy article was sent by member Marjorie Rose, taken from the Asheville Citizen in a 1983 issue.

Aquilla was the son of Nathan Rose of North Carolina and Blount County, Tennessee and his wife Rebecca (Rowan) Rose. This family is interesting in that in DNA testing in 2004-2005, a descendant of this family matches with Group S of the YDNA Rose project which includes descendants of Samuel Rose of Berkeley County, Virginia (West Virginia), Dr. Thomas J. Rose of Bourbon County, Kansas, Jonathan Rose of Manhattan, New York and John Calvin Rose of Nashville, Tennessee, Capt. Joseph Rose of New York City [an amazing connection!], and Robert T. Rose of Washington, D.C., etc. We do not know how these Roses are related to each other, only that their YDNA tests show that they are! Surprisingly, Nathan Rose did not match with Roses of Cherokee County, North Carolina, a family to whom it had been suspected he descended. It should be noted however that Nathan Rose, discussed above, does not match Emanuel Rose. This just proves the old adage that proximity in location should not be assumed to imply relationship!

[Another interesting surprise: In tracing Emanuel Rose who at one time lived in Cherokee County, North Carolina it was assumed he was part of the other Roses there. [Emanuel married first to Margaret Hise and second to Amanda Norris.] However, YDNA testing proved that Emanuel Rose of Cherokee County, North Carolina and Gilmer County, Georgia, was NOT a part of the Group S as the other Cherokee County Roses but instead was a match for the large Group K of the Rose project which has Long Island roots! This "mystery" has not been solved.]

From Sun. Feb. 15, 2015 Richmond Times-Dispatch, a heart-warming article. Sherri Rose tells of her "sweet mama" Marjorie Peatross Rose who was born in 1925 and graduated from high school in 1942. She married David "Mike" O. Rose in 1948. She actively taught all her daughters "Love One Another." That meant everyone with no exclusions. That meant her mother rode in the back of the bus during segregation as a show of support, and her father accepting a "man of color" in his motel when others would not. A great article to read. Alexander Rose of Person County, North Carolina

SON NEIL B. ROSE

Maple Hill Cemetery, Huntsville, Alabama

Neil Buchanan² Rose (Alexander¹), born 11 November 1780, Caswell County, North Carolina (part which became Person County), died 28 February 1835 [g.s.], Madison County, Alabama, buried at Maple Hill, Huntsville, Madison County. He married 1st, bond 17 October 1803, Orange County, North Carolina VR, to Mary "Polly" Rainey (security James Pattison/Patterson). She died 10 May 1829 in her 46th year (obit., Huntsville Democrat), and is buried at Maple Hill, Huntsville;

He married 2nd, 21 January 1836, Madison County, Alabama, Martha T. () Moody, daughter of Mrs. Nancy Mitchell.

Neil B. Rose removed to Rutherford County, Tennessee and is listed there in the 1810 census, and later settled in Huntsville, Madison County, Alabama. He served in the War of 1812 from Tennessee, as Quartermaster, and was in high favor with General Andrew Jackson.

An interesting account was published in a Huntsville newspaper. Mrs. Anne Royal had visited Huntsville in 1818 and 1822 and wrote a number of letters regarding the town and its people. Of Neil B. Rose she said "Major Rose, another of the heroes, is a Scotch gentleman, but a Tennessee soldier. You have not to look very deep for the qualities of his mind. It is plainly depicted in his fine open countenance, and soft blue eyes. He is a middle aged man, of portly size, and acted in the quartermaster's department in the late war. This man, from the land of Wallace and Bruce, was in high favor with General Jackson; and his labors in procuring supplies for the army were unequalled by any thing in history. He rode from the seat of war to Huntsville, very often, without sleep or rest! proceeding night and day express...[he is] the merriest soul in the world. He is nothing but frolic and fun..."

Another account on Feb. 22, 1822 states "I board with Major Rose, the merry old veteran mentioned some time back. He has met with a dreadful reverse of fortune since I first saw him. He was then one of the first merchants in the place, but was overwhelmed in the general wreck which prostrated so many of our merchants. But the Major is as merry as ever; keeps a tavern and boarding house; amuses himself with a pet crow; and sing 'Jerry go nimble.' Mrs. Rose too bears her misfortunes like a philosopher..."

Neil B. Rose did not have children.

Note: See p. 5728 this issue for newspaper notice of death of Maj. Neil B Rose which shows issue of Mar. 6, 1838. Either the date given in Trickett's book is wrong, or the tombstone is in error, perhaps erected at a much later date! Additional note: YDNA testing puts this family in the same group as the Rev. Robert Rose family of Nairnshire, Scotland and Colonial Virginia (the Kilravock Roses) though the relationship is not yet known.

About Our Members

Merlin Dale Rose charter member #81R0396 of Arizona and his sister Beulah Porterfield, photo taken on a Rose Family Association trip to Kilravock Castle in Scotland some years ago. Merlin is a descendant of Benjamin Rose of Bennington, Vermont. Editors enjoyed a brief visit with Merlin in his Tucson home back in the days of our motorhome traveling. Merlin, now in his 90s, may be making another trip to Scotland! We should all have such energy.

From article "UDI Honors Two Korean War Veterans". Shown is Rick Wood, Certificate of Appreciation: Pamela Wood, Jefferson Davis Historical Gold Metal; Martha Sue Broyles, Winnie David Medal and Kenneth Broyles, 2004 Recipient of the UDS National Defense Medal. [Issue Aug. 19, 2006 p 11, name of newspaper not shown but members (Broyles) live in Sparta, Tennessee.] Editors surprised the Broyles when recognizing them in a restaurant while on a research trip to Sparta some years ago!

Evelyn Rose Briggs (now deceased) of St. Paul, Minnesota, her sister Shirley Ruth of Amherst, Ohio, and their brother Harold V. Rose of Paris, France attended the first Rose Conference in Ames, Iowa in 1981. They traced the Robert Rose family of Harrison County, Ohio. They used the occasion for their own reunion after ten years! After this conference editors visited with Harold and his wife in his home near Paris, and Evelyn and her husband visited editors in California. Such wonderful friends.

The Mail Bag

From long-time member Thomas Rose of Richmond, Va., a notice from June 2, 2015 Richmond Times Dispatch article by Jim Nolan that the vital records project of generations of Virginians was soon to be completed and available on Ancestry.com. Do check with ancestry.com - if you are not a member you can access through a library. So many good records on Virginians at that website!

John Lehman tells us that Burke's

General Armory lists 25 different blazons for the surname Rose [Scottish][. See images at his website at:

<http://coadb.com/index.php?search=rose>

Long-time member Richard "Dick" Rose 91800R93 of Ohio is a descendant of William and Mary (Dewitt) Rose of Orange County, New York. Dick, who is very savvy with forums and message boards, has for years maintained one for Group K of the YDNA project. This group included a number of Rose families who have Long Island connections as proved by DNA, but whose connections to each other are unknown. Dick now tells us that for a variety of reasons he will no longer be hosting that group but we are sure that it does not mean that Dick wouldn't want to hear from anyone with information on his interesting New York Rose family!
